Dolson, in an East Main Street boarding-house in February of last year, and soon to be placed on trial for the crime, Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Tilton has asked Judge Hanckel, of the Corporation of the Order to order the prisoner examined by allenists before the trial takes place. Attorney James G. Martin, appointed by the court to defend the prisoner, will oppose the motion when it comes up for argument at 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning. Martin has not yet indicated what his line of defense will be. The officers who brought Thurman from Vancouver, B. C., to Norfolk, would be among those the motion of the prisoner be examined by them.
